Secondhand Yesterdays (AI Generated Song)

(Verse 1)
Faded photographs in a dusty frame
Smiling faces, whispers of a name
Echoes of laughter, a love long gone
Secondhand yesterdays, lingering on

(Chorus)
Secondhand yesterdays, haunting melody
A bittersweet symphony, of what used to be
Can't hold on to the sunshine, when the rain comes down
Just gotta learn to face it, even when it wears me down

(Verse 2)
Empty promises, scattered in the breeze
Like autumn leaves, falling from the trees
A love that burned so bright, now lost in the smoke
Secondhand yesterdays, a story untold

(Chorus)
Secondhand yesterdays, haunting melody
A bittersweet symphony, of what used to be
Can't hold on to the sunshine, when the rain comes down
Just gotta learn to face it, even when it wears me down

(Bridge)
But maybe someday, the tears will dry
And I'll see a new sunrise, in a different sky
These memories, they won't hold me down
I'll find my way, and turn this life around

(Chorus)
Secondhand yesterdays, fading melody
A bittersweet symphony, slowly sets me free
Can't hold on to the sunshine, but the rain will cease
Gotta learn to face the future, and find my inner peace